

MORNING APPEAL.

Tuesday.....August 5 1884

For President,
James G. Blaine, of Maine.

For Vice President,
John A. Logan, of Illinois.

HENDRICKS VS. LOGAN.

Judge Belford, of Colorado, a shrewd leader of the Republican party in the Southwest, has been interviewed at Washington. His opinion regarding the result of the election is most positive. Referring to the Democratic nominee for Vice President he said;

"The idea of comparing a Copperhead of the Tom Hendricks caliber—the man who resigned his pew in a church because the pastor preached a loyal sermon, who opposed the war at every step, who fought every amendment to the constitution, who declared in a speech in the Senate that Lincoln should be driven out of the White House with switches—to a man like Logan, who fought nobly through the war, and who is regarded on all sides as the greatest volunteer general of that war, is utterly ridiculous.

Belford calls the bolters "Band-box Statesmen." A good name.

An address signed by a large number of the Republicans of Pennsylvania who took an active part in the independent movement of 1882, has been issued, directed to the Independents elsewhere who propose to bolt the Republican nominations. Among the signers are Senator Mitchell, ex-Gov. Hoyt, Mr. Garrett, Chairman of the Philadelphia Committee of One Hundred, while Mr. McKee, who was Chairman of the Independent State Committee in 1882, signs with a long list of members of the Committee. The address takes the ground that Mr. Blaine was fairly nominated by a free convention; that he is the choice of the mass of Republicans; that his party's success affords the best assurance of civil service reforms, and that the personal attacks on him are not a justification for bolting.

Mr. Blaine's letter is a bitter disappointment to the Democratic press. Many papers seemed to have worked themselves up to a belief in their own wild assertions that he would enter on a furious crusade against England and all the rest of the nations of the earth, and are sorely astonished that it is not so. Mr. Blaine's views as to our foreign policy are so entirely in harmony with the feelings of every thinking American citizen, that they afford no ground for controversy. The opposition press have the sagacity to know that to attack them would be to go counter to the popular current, and so grudgingly abandon that quarter of battle-field.

Since Labardia operated on the head of the murderer, Campi, Dr. Brown Sequard has undertaken a similar experiment with a dog. He wished to see whether, after a violent death in a healthy state, consciousness in a dog could be restored. He therefore beheaded a dog that was familiar with his voice, another dog having before-hand been prepared for the transfusion of its blood into the arteries of the dead dog's head. No sooner did he inject the blood than the head became animated, the eyes opened, and on the name of the dog being called, an attempt at response was made by a significant look.

Major Scott, Judge Advocate of the Court-martial appointed to try General Swaim, has prepared the charges upon which that officer is to be called to account. The charges are: First, conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman; second neglect of duty.

The New York Sun publishes a double-headed note from a correspondent urging the Democratic National Committee to prevail upon Cleveland to withdraw from the ticket, as his nomination is clearly a mistake.

The Macon, Ga., Telegraph, a Democratic sheet, will not support Cleveland; and its editor states that in his judgement, Blaine will carry North Carolina, Florida and West Virginia.
